

CURRENT PROBLEMS OF MULTILINGUAL EUROPE: EDUCATIONAL CONTEXT

Mariya P. Vynarchyk, Candidate of Pedagogic Sciences Associate Professor at the Department of Romance Philology and Comparative Studies of Drohobych Ivan Franko State Pedagogical University

E-mail: marie-vynarchyk@online.ua

ORCID <https://orcid.org/0000-0001-8270-6178>

DOI: 10.32342/2522-4115-2020-2-20-18

Key words: language policy, Council of Europe, multilingualism, higher education, personal development, multilingual education, foreign languages.

The article considers the features of modern European language policy in the educational context. It has been established that solving the problems of multilingualism is an extremely important matter. Globalization and migration flows of the 21st century have made the role of language policy paramount in today's world. Citizens, equal in rights and responsibilities, are distinguished by their cultural identity, which is why the problem of peaceful coexistence of all citizens of the European community is particularly acute today. The aim of the Council of Europe is to bring the individual member states closer together through joint steps at the cultural level. The heritage of cultural diversity is seen as a treasure to be protected and developed. Only the knowledge of modern European languages will increase opportunities for communication and interaction in all spheres of public life, promote mobility and mutual understanding. All the problems of multilingualism must be addressed in a balanced and tolerant way.

The education sector is an environment that is designed to ensure compliance with all laws and regulations regarding the teaching and learning of foreign languages, a place of democratic approach to the implementation of European language policy. Public administration of languages, regardless of form, has the main goal – to maintain linguistic diversity. No educational space is socially homogeneous, because each has different languages and different cultures. This multiplicity of languages and cultures, which characterizes the modern European space, forces to approach their study extremely carefully, to create all necessary conditions for foreign language activity,

The problem of multilingualism in the European system of higher education is analyzed and the personal development of students in the conditions of multilingualism is covered. It has been established that the Council of Europe promotes the development of quality education: it ensures student mobility, develops joint curricula, creates educational networks, encourages the exchange of information and promotes the benefits of lifelong learning. The knowledge of foreign languages is an important component of this activity. Multilingual citizens are better prepared to take advantage of the educational opportunities offered by the integrated Europe. The relevance and necessity of learning foreign languages at the present stage are substantiated. It is stated that the European language policy encourages multilingualism and aims to achieve a situation where every citizen of Europe, in addition to their native language, will speak at least one foreign language.

References

1. Bahatomovna Yevropa: tendentsii u politytsi i praktytsi multylinhvizmu v Yevropi (2012). [Multilingual Europe: Trends in the Politics and Practice of Multilingualism in Europe]. Kyiv, Lenvit Publ., 168 p. (In Ukrainian).
2. In S.Yu. Nikolaiev (Ed.). (2003). Zahalnoevropeiski Rekomendatsii z movnoi osvity: vyvchennia, vyladannia, otsiniuvannia [Common European Framework of Reference for Languages: Learning, Teaching, Assessment]. Kyiv, Lenvit Publ., 273 p. (In Ukrainian).
3. Karpchuk, N.P. (2015). Natsionalnye kommunikatsionnye strategii stran Evropeiskogo Soiuza: opyt Niderlandov [National communication strategies of the countries of the European Union: the experience of the Netherlands]. Studia Humanitatis, no. 2, pp. 1-16. (In Russian).
4. Manakin, V.M. (2012). Mova i mizhkulturna komunikatsiia [Language and intercultural communication]. Kyiv, Akademiia Publ., 288 p. (In Ukrainian).
5. Oliinyk, I.V. (2016). Filosofski ta spetsyfichni pryntsypy v konteksti suchasnoi osvitynoi paradyhmy [Philosophical and specific principles in the context of the modern educational paradigm]. Visnyk Dnipropetrovskoho universytetu imeni Alfreda Nobelia. Pedahohika i psykholohiia. Pedahohichni nauky [Bulletin of Alfred Nobel University of Dnepropetrovsk. Pedagogy and psychology. Pedagogical sciences], no. 1 (11), pp. 294-298 (In Ukrainian).
6. Agileuova, A., Kulbaeva, A., Zhumanova, A. & Nagumanova, Z.H. (2017). Competence approach in modern humanitarian education, vol. 38, no. 50. pp. 36.

7. Beacco, J. & Byram, M. (2007). From Linguistic Diversity to Plurilingual Education. Guide for the development of Language Education Policies in Europe. Executive Version. Language Policy division DGIV, Council of Europe, Strasbourg. Executive Version, 51 p.
8. Cenoz, J. & Gorter, D. (2010). The Diversity of Multilingualism in Education. International Journal of the Sociology of Language, no. 205, pp. 37-53.
9. European Commission. Multilingualism: An Asset for Europe and A Shared Commitment (2008). Brussels, European Communities, 35 p.
10. Jacques, D. Le multilinguisme et l'identité culturelle européenne [Multilingualism and European cultural identity]. URL: <https://books.openedition.org/pur/33068> (In French).
11. Official site of EU. URL: <http://www.europa.eu.int>

Одержано 21.08.2020.